

I am opposed to any weaking of Wisconsin's No-Call List. At the present time we allow businesses to make ONE call to try to reclaim their former customers. If a business makes this one call and is turned down why should they have the right to harass the former customer any more.

If anything the Federal no-call list requirements should be changed to match Wisconsin's. Residents of the state like not hearing their telephone ring offering them items they do not want. Over 70% of the consumer telephone numbers in Wisconsin are on the state no-call list showing there is great support for this idea.
